Drawing by Nikolai Koshkin

MEGAVISION

"Our 'global town meeting' earlier this month could be the beginning of something new . . . It is a technology for citizen diplomacy. It was great to hear you say, 'Let us move from megatrends to megavision!' That is what the world needs, a megavision of world peace in our time."

Excerpt from a telex sent by John Neisbitt, author of MEGATRENDS, on August 28, 1984 to Joseph Goldin. "A Mirror for Humanity" article printed in "Citizen Summitry" (Keeping The Peace When It Matters Too Much To Be Left To Politicians), edited by Don Carlson and Craig Comstock (1986).